III. Presentation: Active Transportation Background Paper for Plan 2050

Aimee Jefferson, Central Staff, said the paper is the first in a series of white papers that will inform the long range transportation plan update. She said the paper provides a “snapshot” of existing active transportation conditions, which can include walking, biking, scooter use, and skateboarding. She said the paper also discusses the health and economic benefits of active transportation and how to incorporate it into planning work. She noted the limited availability of data on active transportation modes and sidewalk and trail networks

Keith Hamas, Central Staff, said the paper also outlines a combination of strategies and programs employed by the NJTPA and its planning partners to address the principal guiding goal of planning for active transportation – connectivity. He noted some of the programs related to active transportation, including the Local Safety Program, Transportation Management Association (TMA) programs, Planning for Emerging Centers, the Complete Streets Technical Assistance program, the Together North Jersey Technical Assistance program, as well as coordination with the New Jersey Department of Transportation (NJDOT) on the State Strategic Highway Safety Plan, Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality (CMAQ) initiatives such as the Transportation Clean Air Measures program, Safe Routes to School, and other opportunities.

Ms. Jefferson followed with some case studies that demonstrate how different initiatives and programs can align at the local level. The Active Transportation white paper is available on the NJTPA website at https://www.njtpa.org/NJTPA/media/Documents/Planning/Plans-Guidance/Planning%20for%202050/njtpa_activetransportation.pdf.

She said October is Pedestrian Safety Month and the TMAs are engaged with pedestrian safety education and encouragement activities.

2. Plan 2050: Transportation, People and Opportunity Update

He encouraged all to take the survey and share it through county and municipal communication channels, social media, and email. Mr. Ritter reported that, with consultant support, NJTPA staff conducted five virtual public workshops, one entirely in Spanish. He said the public outreach team is exploring ways to attract a larger and more varied audience for upcoming virtual workshops. Mr. Ritter said the first symposium in the TPA Tuesdays series was held October 6 and focused on Adapting to Change.

Ms. Rosenberger said input from the Trustees and RTAC members will be sought throughout the development process, and she asked that any suggestions for the program update be submitted by October 31, so they may be incorporated into the first draft, which will be distributed for review in December. Ms. Rosenberger said subsequent comments on the draft program are requested by

This Plan demonstrates the region's progress on three federally required performance measures, two dealing with congestion and one concerning the reduction of vehicle emissions. The NJTPA's plan shows that targets for these three measures have been met, and it also provides a list of upcoming CMAQ projects and discusses their part in improving air quality.
