FINALLY, PLEASE CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING SAFETY TIPS WHEN PROVIDING CONTENT TO US:

Pre-Screen: Please pre-screen any video or audio you provide to us.

The Golden Rule: Never post or submit anything to us – words, pictures, links, emails, blogs, comments and tweets, that you are not comfortable sharing with everyone else in the world. The Internet is a global distribution medium, and once something is published, it cannot easily be retracted. There is a saying which is very appropriate here: “once you squeeze out the toothpaste you cannot ever put toothpaste back into the tube.”

Ask Your Child for Permission to Post: Involve your children in the process. Ask them if they are comfortable with you sharing their photos or other content. We suggest that you let them have input in which photos or other content may be shared with us.

Consider the Background Appearing in Your Photos: Be cognizant that background information in your photos can reveal much information about you and can be a safety concern. For example, photos taken in front of your home could have your home address visible in the background. Photos taken in front of a local landmark could also reveal places you frequent. NJTPA does not know your local area and we will have no way of knowing what backgrounds could pose a safety concern.

Check Your Child’s Clothing: A child’s T-shirt could contain a school logo or summer camp or other information that could also reveal their location.

GPS: Some phones embed GPS into media. Please turn off the location service when recording video or audio on your mobile device that you will provide to us.

Don’t Post or Provide Us with Content of Children Who Are Not Yours: If you are not the parent or legal guardian of a child, you do not have permission to post the content of that child.
